

Narcissism and Borderline Personality Workshop

Perth, Western Australia
December 1 & 2 2012

Narcissism and Borderline Personality Disorder create ongoing issues for their relationship partners, families, and work colleagues. Those in support of sufferers of Borderline Personality Disorder (BPD) and Narcissism suffer from ongoing anxiety/trauma and low self-esteem based in their personality, ranging from confusion, self-blame, to addictions like alcohol, drugs, and food.

Narcissism and sufferers of BPD need support to understand their chaos, trauma, false self and denial of feelings. A victim of one of these personalities is often not believed by others who are deceived into seeing their partners or offending work superiors as charismatic, high achievers, or admirable people. Living with a Narcissist or someone with BPD can severely impact quality of life, relationships, work and health of loved ones.

Learn how to empower yourself to recover from the thinking and beliefs that bring on and reinforce these debilitating conditions, and to disable your own unhealthy forms of caretaking or enabling of these personalities. Learn how the latest body mind knowledge relates to these trauma states and how they manifest in the body and the mind. Learn the daily techniques to cope and disarm the Narcissist or Borderline person in your life, and how to live with a partner or in a family coping with these disorders.

Invest 2 days in yourself and take these tools back into your daily life and start to reclaim your life, self-esteem and your sanity!!
